DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on October 21, 2007 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 14, 15, and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gorsuch (US Patent 6,151,332) in view of Petersen (US Patent 6,574,221 B1).

Regarding to claims 14 and 17, Gorsuch discloses an apparatus 100 for real-time transmission of compressed data (fig. 1 col. 4 lines 61-67), comprising a receiving unit 120 (fig. 1 col. 3 lines 62-64) for receiving both useful data and filling data (fig. 3 col. 5 lines 56-62; noted the useful data is located in field 312 and the filling data is located in field 311 and 313) which arrive as a data stream with a constant data rate via a circuit-switched connection of a first communications network (fig. 1 col. 3 lines 31-46; noted ISDN is a circuit switched network having a constant rate transmission); a control unit 422 for removing the filling data contained in the data stream with the constant data rate and for reformatting the useful data contained in the data stream into a format compatible with a data stream with a variable data rate via a packet-oriented connection 428 by embedding the useful data into the transmission format of the packet oriented connection (fig. 4 col. 6 lines 32-40; noted the filling data in field 311 and 313 is removed, and only the useful data in field 312 is transmitted), wherein said variable data rate corresponds to a variable transmission bandwidth available for the connection (col. 6 lines 62-67 and col. 7 lines 1-2; noted the radio channels corresponds to a transmission bandwidth supporting a variable rate that's allocated to user only upon demand); and a sending unit 140 (fig. 1 col. 4 lines 10-14) for sending the reformatted useful data as a data stream with a variable data rate via a packet-oriented connection of a second communications network (fig. 1 col. 4 lines 14-18; noted the base station is a packet-oriented connection of a mobile communications network).

Gorsuch fails to teach the packet oriented connection is one of General Packet Radio Service GPRS cells and Asynchronous Transfer Mode ATM cells.

However, Petersen discloses a mobile radio communications network includes an interworking function unit 134/140 for converting compressed data between PSTN and ATM or GPRS networks.

Thus, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to employ such connection points as taught by Petersen into Gorsuch's system for an efficient handling of communication services between various networks.

Regarding to claim 15, Gorsuch discloses the apparatus is connected between a line-connected communications network and a mobile communications network (fig. 1 col. 3 lines 8-15).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 16 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gorsuch in view of Petersen.

Regarding to claims 16 and 18, Gorsuch in view of Petersen disclose all the limitations with respect to claims 14 and 17, except for the useful data is compressed video data. However, to arrange for the transmission of compressed data with useful data as compressed video data would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art since such transmission of video data is well known in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 19-21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
